Affects of Anxiety, Dementia and Substance Abuse on Professionalism by TRT (2.0 ethics, 2.0 total, 73173)

____December 21,

Anxiety attacks and substance abuse markedly affect professionalism. This is particularly true from dealing with early signs of dementia to the dreaded Alzheimer's disease. As we know, substance abuse often takes an incalculable toll on professionals. When coupled with losses, especially of spouses, lawyers are presented with real dilemmas. The affect of legal ethics on admission and retention matters are addressed, with this seminar focused on character and fitness issues, as well as on the impact of lawyer criminal convictions.

Fast-forward through Pertinent 2010 Legal Ethics Issues by TRT (2.0 ethics, 2.0 total, 73174)

____December 30,

This fast-paced seminar focuses on a review of pertinent legal ethics issues in the past year. Attention is afforded old and new ethical matters, as well as a review of cases setting legal ethical trends. Subjects include permitting non-lawyers to invest in legal outcomes; furthering the impact of telecommuting, and the EU's push to nix privilege for in-house practitioners. Examining the setting of ethical trends includes 1st Amendment issues and judges' political speech; the sender's burden to scrub metadata, and possibly halting law firm expansion abroad.

December 2011 Teleconference CLE Calendar, continued:

The High Price of Prosecutorial Discretion/Indiscretion by TRT (2.0 ethics, 2.0 total, 73175)

____ December 28,

Is a prosecutor truly a minister of justice and not simply an advocate (Comment 1 to MR 3.8)? Professionalism and training standards are examined with an eye to prosecutor's role in instances of wrongful prosecution/incarceration. Major emphasis is devoted to prosecutorial misconduct at the federal and state levels. Intentional prosecutorial misconduct of Michael B. Nifong is reviewed anew for additional light this seminal case might shed on future prosecutorial discretion/indiscretion.

Impact of Lawyer Advertising on the Profession by TRT (2.0 ethics, 2.0 total, 73176)

____ December 28[4-6pm],

Love it or hate it, lawyer advertising is here to stay. Bates v. State Bar of Arizona (1977) opened the floodgates for professional advertising. Many of today's television advertisements are aimed at clients with personal injury claims, often handled by what are sometimes referred to as settlement mills. Who is the true beneficiary of this change, permitting lawyer advertising? Here we revisit professionalism in light of lawyer advertising, as well as examine the potential collision between legal ethics and lawyer advertising.

Globalization and the Changing Roles of In-house and Outside Counsel by TRT (2.0 ethics, 2.0 total, 73178)

____ December 27[4-6pm],

Globalization continues as a major force affecting the practice of law both here and abroad. This is especially applicable with in-house and outside counsel issues where roles are rapidly changing in this 21st century. Issues involving corporations and the privilege will increasingly impact domestic and foreign practitioners. Special attention is devoted to MJP as a functioning concept of practical concern, especially when considering the role of corporate counsel.

Not for Government Lawyers Only by TRT (2.0 ethics, 2.0 total, 73179)

____ December 30[4-6pm],

This seminar focuses on unique role differences that exist between government and private lawyers. Further, government lawyers are special types of civil servants, especially when applying the Whistleblower Protection Act. Would society be better served if government lawyers who leak information were afforded added protection? How might bar ethics committees respond to any special confidentiality exemptions for government lawyers?

Ethics - Chemistry or Alchemy? by TRT (2.0 ethics, 2.0 total, 73180)

____ December 29,

Interactive workshop for practicing and improving skills in recognizing ethics problems and devising ethically appropriate solutions. Emphasis on a learning-by-doing approach utilizing an interactive format consistently rated by participants as constituting not only a helpful format for CLE but also one that's enjoyable.

Deposition Practice: Opportunities and Pitfalls by TRT (2.0 sub, 2.0 total, 73186)

____ December 27,

This seminar will consider ways in which lawyers can capitalize on depositions to improve their positions vis a vis their adversaries. It will also discuss depositions risk, including discussion of whether it is ever better NOT to take a deposition.

Intellectual-Property Fair-Use/Free-Speech by TRT (2.0 sub, 2.0 total, 73189)

____ December 26,

Seminar focuses on tension between property rights and free speech in the age of the internet. Seminar will permit and encourage (but not require) interactive participation. What are the constitutionally appropriate standards for balancing such rights? How does the Digital Millennium Copyright Act affect such balancing? What about the "right of publicity" and how does it relate to parody and/or satire? What are appropriate standards for balancing common-law intellectual-property concepts with those encompassed by statutory provisions?
